Out of the Ashes: Rebuilding American Culture Anthony M. Esolen
It's not your imagination: civilized human society—the institutions and values that separate man from beast and bring us closer to God—is collapsing. Communities are no longer directed towards a common good; children are no longer our first priority; businesses no longer value "good work"; great arts and skills have been lost; and manhood and womanhood are no longer celebrated as necessary complementary energies.

We cannot reverse national and global trends, says professor Anthony Esolen; but what we can and should do is rebuild intentional communities that live up to humanity's promise and responsibility. In Out of the Ashes, Esolen identifies the gaping problems in our society and lays out a blueprint for reconstruction that puts our future in the hands of individuals, parents, and local communities.
